

The Era of Re [2022/23]

After a period of adaptation, we now know that what we want is to have a:

*Healthy
Safe
Flexible Connected and Sustainable lifestyle*

After these two past turbulent years, we are still anchored in a desire for wellbeing and feeling safe, as much as we need a sense of control over most areas of our lives.

In a period of adaptation, these are ideally the five attributes we wish for our future way of living: we want is a healthy, safe, flexible, connected, and sustainable lifestyle.

The must-have trends in furniture design for 2022/23 come from flexible home office configurations to wellness-driven shapes and joyfully coloured statement pieces.

A Wellness Brand

Wellness and care have a more holistic understanding

Consumers identify a wellness brand if they cover physical, mental, social and purposeful characteristics.

Considering the impact a brand has on a community and on the world, brands need to take care of the individual as well as of the society as whole.

Contemplation Design

Wellness today is taking time for reflection and contemplation.

Spaces are becoming warmer, softer and more wellness-centric.

Design that considers the impact on mental health moves to the fore, as architects and interior designers aim to soothe post-pandemic anxiety.

It's an exercise about beauty, simplicity, and minimalism.

Inviting interiors focus on elements from the sanctuary home, with soothing colours, tactile materials, diffused lighting and organic forms that communicate a message of safety.

A HYBRID LIFE

A blend of two lifestyles: private & public

After a period of adaptation, we now know that what we want is to have a healthy, safe, flexible, connected, and sustainable lifestyle.

Borderless aesthetics between residential and public design continue to grow as we seek homely comfort wherever we go.

Our home used to be the shelter for personal life. Working from home over a continuous period leads to change. That tradition has shifted into a hybrid lifestyle.

BIOPHILIC DESIGN GOES MAINSTREAM

Biophilic design is incorporating nature into our built environment and designing inspirational and restorative places that connect humans to their surroundings.

It's more than just the addition of a pot plant or two. Natural light, vegetation, living walls, natural textures & materials and nature views will provide a positive impact.

Finishes can look rather essential but can also be altered with natural dyes to achieve a more refined aspect.

They have significant influence on how we perceive conscious surface design today.

MEANINGFUL IMPERFECTION

Materials look as unaltered as possible

Nature is never the same; it evolves, changes colors and textures throughout the seasons, and exposes surface design to the outdoors.

The idea of waiting to contact nature in the most essential and unaltered way fosters the concept of being surrounded by surface design that shows a patina of time.
